Happy, born Michael Campion, graduated from college and became a well known professional golfer. He started off as a very promising young player, who at the end of 1993 won the U.S. Amateur. A few years later, he became a big story in golf when he won the 1996 U.S. Open at Pebble Beach Golf Links. He was a young, hot-shot in the US, who could make his name in his game and in the media, as well. Happy was a star, but at the same time, he was a troubled guy and he got into some trouble with the law. He was very colorful in both on and off the course. Happy did not know that his parents, Carl and Celia, were not really his parents and he was adopted by them. They were actually married, but due to an old conflict between them, they sent him to live with his real mother, who adopted him. He was all right, as he went to a state school, he was athletic and a decent person, but he was not happy. He came from a good and loving family, but his past became apparent later, when he was much older. It was not until he grew up and learned that he was adopted that he gained knowledge about the fact that he was adopted. He knew that his real mother was someone he had never met, but he had a good relationship with his adoptive parents. He also found out that they were not his real parents, but he had a good life with them. When he learned the truth, he broke off his ties with his adoptive parents. He said that they never adopted him and he had a full access to his real mother. Happy's adoptive parents were often mad at him, because he wanted to become a golf professional and he would not accept the fact that they told him that his passion was golf and they needed him to study business. Happy had problems with his parents too. He would do things and say things in front of them, which would make them mad at him. Happy knew that he could never do the things he did because they were too embarrassing and would hurt him, so he would sneak out to do them and this made him a little bit sad. When he was a little older, he started to suspect that his 82157476af
